

SCRIPTURE IN NEW FRONTIERS

Second Word

Final Three-Minute Product Film

Other writing tools ask whether your sentence is correct.
Second Word asks what kind of human moment this is.

RUNTIME 2:55-3:00

Urgent at first. Then quiet, human and hopeful.

0:00-0:22

Words move faster than wisdom

VISUAL

Black screen. Notification sounds accelerate. Fast cuts across email, Slack, WhatsApp, Teams and X. A rejection arrives. A rent reminder arrives. Someone is blamed in a work thread. Cursors blink. Thumbs hover over Send.

VOICEOVER

“Every day, the words that shape our relationships are written here. In the reply after rejection. In the message sent under pressure. In the sentence we may still regret a year from now. Our words have never travelled faster. Wisdom has never had less time to catch up.”

ON SCREEN / SOUND

Notifications stop. One quiet cursor remains.

Reveal the category

VISUAL

Open the public Second Word experience. Show the quiet mark inside an empty composer. Click it. Today's verified Verse of the Day opens. Collapse References. Return to the empty composer.

VOICEOVER

“Other writing tools ask whether your sentence is correct. Second Word asks what kind of human moment this is. Before you type, the Word is already near. It does not read the empty box. It simply offers today's Scripture when you ask.”

0:42-1:22

Guard in the actual moment

VISUAL

Choose Gmail, then The rejection. Fill the suggested angry response. Do not click anything. After typing settles, Living Margin marks the exact phrases and the Second Word invitation appears. Send remains visible. Open the card. Show the verified passage, reviewed explanation, one relational question and collapsed publisher References.

VOICEOVER

“When the words carry weight, Second Word notices on its own. It never changes the editor and never blocks Send. Living Margin shows what invited the pause. Gloo identifies the human moment and ranks only reviewed references. YouVersion alone supplies the Scripture text. The model cannot invent a verse, and its internal commentary never reaches the person.”

Agency, not automation

VISUAL

Choose Show alternatives. Compare an alternative with the untouched original. Keep editing instead of replacing it. Change one marked phrase and show the mark disappear immediately.

VOICEOVER

“Second Word does not speak for you. An alternative is optional and tied to the exact draft that was analysed. Edit the words and the permission expires. There is no auto-send, no moral score and no forced rewrite. The person remains the author.”

1:48-2:18

The full human story

VISUAL

Fast, legible cuts: Gmail rent reminder receives provision; WhatsApp grief receives care without a casual rewrite; Slack freely carrying a colleague receives a gold Guide with no question; LinkedIn good news receives gratitude; neutral scheduling receives nothing.

VOICEOVER

“This is not an anger detector. The Word can guard what may wound, meet fear with provision, stay near grief, and recognise gratitude or generosity already present. And when a message needs nothing, Second Word knows when to stay quiet.”

Prove it is real

VISUAL

Cut briefly to the live Worker health response naming Gloo. Show the deployed preflight passing: Verse of the Day, Guard, Guide, Silence, Rewrite and tamper rejection. Flash the 239-test result and nine supported extension surfaces.

VOICEOVER

“This is a working extension and public demo. Drafts are not stored. Requests are bounded. Gloo is live behind a protected allowance. Every passage is verified at runtime, and every result says which provider actually ran.”

ON SCREEN / SOUND

2:42-3:00

The impact

VISUAL

Return to the composer. The original angry reply becomes truthful and gracious without losing its point. The person sends it. End on the Second Word mark and wordmark.

VOICEOVER

“Across work, public conversation and private life, Scripture can meet people in the place they were already about to speak. Sometimes the Word guards what could wound. Sometimes it reminds us what is already good. Second Word. The Word, living in your text box.”

ON SCREEN / SOUND

SECOND WORD

Scripture in the space between reaction and response.

RECORDING RULES

Keep the film true to the product

1. Use the public experience at <https://second-word.pages.dev>.
2. Record one continuous live Guard interaction. Use cuts only for the faster montage.
3. Keep the real provider statement visible long enough to read.
4. Do not show YouVersion Highlights, prayer buttons, emotion scores, a dashboard or automatic sending. None are part of this demo.
5. Keep the final edit at or below 3:00 and verify the uploaded link while logged out.

FINAL PROOF SHOT

REQUIRE_GLOO=1 npm run preflight

The film sells one idea: Scripture arrives inside the human moment without taking the person's voice away.
